ANY RESPONSE SHALL INCLUDE A DETAILED AND COMPREHENSIVE STATEMENT AS TO HOW THE MOVANT CAN BE “ADEQUATELY PROTECTED” IF THE STAY IS TO BE CONTINUED.

Creditor CoinLab, Inc. ("CoinLab"), by and through its attorneys, hereby joins in (I) Creditors Gregory Greene and Joseph Lack's Motion for an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2004 Compelling Deposition Testimony in the United States from the Foreign Representative [Dkt. No. 39], filed with this Court on March 25, 2014 (the "Motion to Compel"), and (II) Creditors Gregory Greene and Joseph Lack's Motion for Termination of Provisional Relief [Dkt. No. 37], also filed with this Court on March 25, 2014 (the "Stay Relief Motion"). CoinLab further seeks the same relief sought in both the Motion to Compel and the Stay Relief Motion to the extent applicable to its own proceedings pending against the Debtor and its parent in Seattle, and seeks the right to have the same heard on an expedited basis on April 1, 2014, or, if not granted, at a regularly noticed hearing, but in any event on the same date as the Motion to Compel and the Stay Relief Motion. Accordingly, CoinLab respectfully represents as follows:

I.
INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

1. CoinLab is a creditor herein and plaintiff in a breach of contract dispute against the above-captioned debtor in a foreign proceeding (the "Debtor") and its parent, Tibanne KK, a Japanese corporation ("Tibanne" and together with the Debtor, "Defendants"), which is currently pending in the United States District Court for the Western District of Washington, CoinLab, Inc. v. Mt. Gox KK, et al., Case No. 2:13-cv-00777-MJP (the "Seattle Action").

2. Specifically, CoinLab brought suit in the Seattle Action to remedy the Debtor's and Tibanne's breach of their agreement with CoinLab that CoinLab would be the exclusive licensee for the Defendants' bitcoin-exchange services in North America. Both CoinLab and the Defendants are among the world's largest providers of technology and services for the digital currency bitcoin. Under the agreement, the Debtor granted CoinLab access to its computer servers and granted the exclusive right to certain intellectual property necessary for CoinLab to provide digital currency exchange services to North American customers. CoinLab offered its credibility, market insights, relationships with established banks and investors, and intellectual property and agreed to manage and market the exchange services in North America.

3. However, the Debtor willfully failed to perform its obligations under its agreement with CoinLab, and has continued to market to customers in North America and accept business from customers there. The Debtor has also failed to provide CoinLab with account reconciliation data, server access, and other information promised in the agreement that is essential for CoinLab to market exchange services and service its customers as contemplated in the agreement. These breaches have caused CoinLab to lose customers and threaten to cause substantial damage to CoinLab's business—giving rise to the commencement of the Seattle Action.

4. On March 10, the Debtor filed a petition for recognition and related relief under Chapter 15 of the United States Bankruptcy Code¹ with this Court. Pursuant to this Court's Order Granting Application for Provisional Relief, Scheduling Recognition Hearing, and Specifying Form and Manner of Notice [Dkt. No. 13] (the "TRO Order"), the Seattle Action was stayed against the Debtor. Notably, CoinLab understands that the Debtor also requested that this Court stay litigation against Tibanne as well, which this Court denied at the hearing on the same on March 10, 2013. Similarly, in the Class Action Litigation² against the Debtor and Tibanne pending in the Northern District of Illinois, the Defendants' request for a bankruptcy stay of the litigation against Tibanne (and Mark Karpeles, the foreign representative in this proceeding and chief executive officer of the Debtor and Tibanne, referred to herein as "Mr. Karpeles" or the "Foreign Representative") was denied. (See Declaration of Roger Townsend at ¶ 2 (the "Townsend Decl."), attached as Exhibit 1 to the Request for Judicial Notice filed concurrently herewith.)

5. Despite consistently losing the argument that any provisional relief for the Debtor should apply more broadly, counsel for the Defendants have taken the position that the litigation against Tibanne in the Seattle Action should be stayed. (Townsend Decl. ¶ 3.) To that end, Tibanne has failed to produce Mr. Karpeles at a deposition previously agreed upon by the parties and has failed to comply with certain other discovery obligations in the Seattle Action. On February 28, 2014, CoinLab issued a notice of deposition for Mark Karpeles. (See Townsend Decl. Ex. 2.) Pursuant to an agreement between the parties, Mr. Karpeles' individual deposition was scheduled for March 25 and 26, 2014 in Taipei, Taiwan, at the offices of defense counsel. However, after various communications between the parties, Defendants' counsel informed CoinLab's counsel that it was "highly unlikely" that Mr. Karpeles would appear as agreed, citing to the "complexity" introduced by the Debtor's bankruptcy filing in Japan, and, indeed, Mr. Karpeles subsequently failed to appear. (See Townsend Decl. Exs. 3, 4, and 5.) Counsel have met and conferred but have been unable to reach an agreement regarding the deposition of Mr. Karpeles.

¹ References herein to the "Bankruptcy Code" are to Title 11 of the United States Code, as amended. Statutory references herein are to sections of the Bankruptcy Code unless otherwise specified.

² Capitalized terms used herein but not otherwise defined have the meanings given them in the Stay Relief Motion or the Motion to Compel, as applicable.

6. CoinLab's difficulties in securing the deposition in the Seattle Action of Mr. Karpeles, who, as Foreign Representative (among other roles), has a fiduciary obligation to the Debtor's creditors—including the duty of candor to creditors concerning information about the Debtor's estate that is critical to the evaluation of creditors' claims and involvement in this case—highlight the need for this Court's intervention. The Rule 2004 deposition proposed in the Motion to Compel would equally benefit CoinLab, who may indeed be one of the estate's largest creditors, providing CoinLab with an opportunity to inquire into the Debtor's assets and investigate the facts and circumstances surrounding the Chapter 15 proceeding while it evaluates the Debtor's pending petition for recognition, and would assist in CoinLab's prosecution of its claims against the estate.

7. Similarly, for the reasons stated in the Stay Relief Motion, CoinLab should be permitted to continue pursuing its claims in the Seattle Action. The Foreign Representative has failed to identify any harm to creditors if the provisional relief ordered by this Court is terminated, and yet the injunction currently prevents CoinLab from liquidating its claims against the Debtor and otherwise protecting its interests to mitigate its escalating damages.

II. ARGUMENT

A. The Motion to Compel Applies with Equal Force to the Seattle Action.

8. CoinLab shares the concerns expressed in the Motion to Compel generally, including the facts and arguments articulated in paragraphs 1-7, 11-15, and 21-34 therein, which CoinLab incorporates herein by reference. Each of the facts and arguments raised in that motion and the authorities cited therein applies equally to the Seattle Action as to the Class Action Litigation.

9. CoinLab, as a major creditor of the Debtor, is entitled to information that the Foreign Representative possesses regarding the Debtor's assets in the United States, of the critical facts leading up to the initiation of the Japan Proceeding, and of events following the commencement of the bankruptcy. This information is necessary for CoinLab's evaluation of the pending petition for recognition and is also necessary for CoinLab's continued liquidation of its claims against the Debtor. It is particularly important that the Foreign Representative, who suffers from serious conflicts of interest, be transparent with the information he possesses about the Debtor, given his increasing lack of credibility with creditors.

10. Given his refusal to appear at previously scheduled depositions based on his contention that he personally should be protected as a result of the Debtor's bankruptcy filing, this Court's intervention is needed to compel Mr. Karpeles's attendance at a Rule 2004 examination as requested in the Motion to Compel for the benefit of CoinLab as well.

B. The Stay Relief Motion Also Applies to the Seattle Action.

11. CoinLab also shares the concerns expressed in the Stay Relief Motion generally, including the facts and arguments articulated in paragraphs 1-3, 5, 6, 7-22, 24-27, 29-43, and 45-50 therein, which CoinLab incorporates herein by reference.

12. Indeed, the arguments raised in the Stay Relief Motion regarding the need for relief from the stay imposed by the TRO Order applies with equal force to the Seattle Action as to the Class Action Litigation. CoinLab is entitled to pursue the liquidation of its claims against the Debtor in its chosen forum, but the Foreign Representative has failed to justify why the stay is just and proper, particularly before this Court has ruled on the pending petition for recognition. Furthermore, as discussed in the Stay Relief Motion, there are serious questions about the reliability (and sufficiency) of the Foreign Representative's declaration that formed the basis for the provisional relief this Court granted. In any event, CoinLab expects that the current Japanese insolvency process will soon shift to a liquidation proceeding that will displace Mr. Karpeles, casting further doubt on the propriety of the provisional relief he sought.

13. Furthermore, CoinLab has been denied sufficient protection under section 1522—the provisional relief granted under the TRO Order has, without a proper showing of cause, denied CoinLab the ability to continue pursuing its rights and remedies in the Seattle Action.³ CoinLab is no less entitled to the relief and protection sought in the Stay Relief Motion than the plaintiffs in the Class Action Litigation.

14. Accordingly, for those reasons and, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1522 and other applicable law, CoinLab seeks comparable relief for itself and the Seattle Action, including obtaining an order terminating the provisional emergency relief granted to the Foreign Representative in the TRO Order with respect to the Seattle Action.

C. This Motion and Joinder Should be Heard on an Expedited Basis at the April 1, 2014 Hearing.

15. CoinLab submits that the issues set forth in the Motion to Compel and the Stay Relief Motion apply equally to the Seattle Action. Given the interrelation of the facts and law in those motions to the facts and law at issue in CoinLab's motion and joinder here, CoinLab hereby requests that this Court hear this motion and joinder at the upcoming April 1, 2014 hearing for the same reasons set forth in (I) the Motion for Setting and Request for Expedited Hearing on Creditors Gregory Greene and Joseph Lack's Motion for Termination of Provisional

Relief [Dkt. No. 38] and (II) the Motion for Setting and Request for Expedited Hearing on Creditors Gregory Greene and Joseph Lack's Motion for an Order Pursuant to Bankruptcy Rule 2004 Compelling Deposition Testimony in the United States from the Foreign Representative [Dkt. No. 40], and accordingly, CoinLab incorporates the same by reference as applicable hereto.

III. NOTICE

16. Copies of this motion and joinder and proposed forms of order have been provided to: (i) the Office of the United States Trustee for the Northern District of Texas; (iii) counsel to the Foreign Representative; (ii) counsel to the movants in the Stay Relief Motion and the Motion to Compel; and (iv) the creditors listed in the Debtor's creditor matrix via electronic mail or overnight mail.

17. CoinLab submits that the above notice and service constitute reasonable and proper notice under the circumstances, and that no other or further notice is necessary or appropriate.

IV. CONCLUSION

18. Accordingly, CoinLab hereby requests that this Court enter orders, substantially in the forms attached hereto as Exhibits A, B, and C, respectively (A) compelling the Foreign Representative to submit to a 2004 examination (or a deposition under Bankruptcy Rule 7030 if the Court deems a Rule 2004 examination inappropriate), (B) terminating the emergency relief granted to the Debtor in the TRO Order as it pertains to the Seattle Action, and (C) setting a hearing on this motion and joinder for April 1, 2014 at 1:30 p.m.
